

PROTECTING YOUR EXECUTIVE TRAVELERS

Executive Travel Security Briefings (ETSB) are designed to help our clients assess the risks and key threats in locations, countries and regions where they are planning to travel. ETSBs help busy executives plan for their travel and prepare them and their travel companions to react effectively in the event of an emergency. ETSBs help travelers be prepared for conditions and customs present at their destination.

The content of the ETSB is customized to your upcoming trip and will cover topics such as:

- Country-specific threat analysis
- Good sources of information on travel location
- Pre-trip preparation checklist
- Emergency contact list
- Medical care in country
- Airport procedures
- Local travel (use of taxis, hire cars, etc.) tips
- Hotel security tips
- Residential security (if required)
- Personal security procedures
- Specific guidelines for women travelers (if required)
- What to do in case of emergencies (mugging, car-jack, kidnap, theft, accidents, etc.)
- Common scams to avoid for business travelers
- [Optional] Resources to support executive travelers (Emergency Beacon/Tracking)
- [Optional] Travel Advance Team Support
- [Optional] Emergency Extraction Planning

Today's world represents a host of new issues and potential threats for executive business travelers. Even travel to familiar locations now requires planning to deal with new threats and concerns that were un-imaginable a few years ago. WGM's Executive Travel Security Briefing is an excellent way to find out the latest risks and concerns helping to ensure you are well prepared for your upcoming travel.
